The game was hard fought up to the eighth inning, when the score stood 4 to 3 in favor of the visitors and it looked as though Rutland would be defeated. In the eighth inning, however, Spring, the St. Albans pitcher, apparently lost his head and the remainder of the team followed suit, letting in five runs. DIED IN BURLINGTON.

Miss Jennie Whitcomb, a Former Montpelier Resident.

Burlington, July 21, 1903.—Miss Jennie Whitcomb, aged 46 years, died at the home of her brother, Henry Whitcomb, 47, South Winslow Avenue, yesterday afternoon, after a lingering illness of about three years. Her failure in health was gradual until about two months ago, when it was more perceptible and one week before her death she suffered a severe attack from which little hope was expressed of her recovery.

Miss Whitcomb was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asahel Whitcomb and was born in 1857 at Danville. The greater part of her early life was spent in Montpelier. About 22 years ago she moved to this city and for several years was engaged as trimmer in the millinery store of Miss L. M. Strain.

MILES' NINETY MILE RIDE.

Head of Army Proves Physical Robustness at Age of Sixty-four.

Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles reached Fort Reno from Fort Sill, ninety miles away, the other day in nine hours and ten minutes, says a special telegram from El Reno, O. T., to the Philadelphia Public Ledger. He rode horseback all the way. The trip was made to prove to the army and the people generally that General Miles, at the age of retirement, sixty-four years, is still robust.

The record breaking part of the trip was the thirty-five mile stretch between Fort Sill and Anadarko. This was accomplished in two hours and twenty-five minutes. During the trip the general had nine mounts. Captain Sayre of the Eighth cavalry made the ride with him. The rest of the escort used government teams and ambulances. The general was the freshest looking man in the party. He wore dark trousers, canvas leggings and light blue shirt. As he dismounted he remarked: "I enjoyed every moment of the trip. There was one time I felt particularly good; that was when I came up to the men who had charge of the pack teams, just south of the Canadian River. They had a lunch ready, and I enjoyed it with them. It made me feel extra good."

MRS. JOHNSTON'S DEVOTION

How a Former White House Mistress Cared For Her Boys.

Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston's death has revived the memory of the tactful and gracious mistress of the White House during the presidency of her uncle, James Buchanan.

An old Baltimorean at the Fifth Avenue hotel the other day related some anecdotes of the other side of her life, as mistress of her own home and devoted mother of two fine lads, whom she brought up as though they were delicate exotics.

A dinner party was in progress at the Johnston home when the nurse appeared at the dining room door.

"Mrs. Johnston," she said solemnly, as if she were a bearer of sad tidings, "Buchanan has sneezed."

It was a vivid, if somewhat ludicrous, illustration of the extreme care Mrs. Johnston took of her boys, Henry and Buchanan, both of whom, however, died in their teens.—New York Times.

TRAGIC FATE
OF YOUNG WIFEMrs. Arthur Ratalis Shot at Laconia.

AFFAIR WAS AN ACCIDENT

The Young Woman Was Alone in Her Room While Her Husband Had Gone Out Seeking Work.

Laconia, July 20.—Either by accident or discouraged because her husband could not find work, the beautiful 17-year-old bride of Arthur Ratalis, a Greek, ended her life by shooting herself in the right breast with her husband's revolver about 3 o'clock this afternoon in a furnished room at 133 Union avenue.

Although the young woman lived for about three-quarters of an hour after she fired the fatal shot, she was unable to tell the officers who she was, where she came from or how the revolver was discharged. Dr. A. H. Harriman, who attended her, said that death was caused by the excessive loss of blood and that the wound in itself was not necessarily fatal.

The husband, who speaks broken English, arrived at the home just as his girl-wife expired. When he learned that his wife was dead he almost collapsed.

Ratalis in a talk with a reporter said that he could not understand what could have prompted his wife to take her life. "We were married at the city hall in Manchester, February 25, by the city clerk," he said. "My wife's father's name is Michael I. Judge, and he now resides in Ipswich, Mass. I also have two brothers living there. I came to this country six years ago and lived in Lowell some time and in Ipswich for two years."

He said that he would take the body to Ipswich for burial. How he happened to be married in Manchester he did not make clear.

Medical Referee Reekford pronounced it a case of accidental shooting and gave a permit for the removal of the body to undertaking rooms.

"Cycle Campers."

An association of cycle campers has been formed in England with the idea of dispensing with inns while on tour, says the New York World. Italy and coal as the English climate is, it is found possible and pleasant to carry all one's luggage for camping in a common luggage carrier. At a recent exhibition tents weighing from eleven and a half to thirteen pounds were shown, including bamboo poles for pitching. Two cyclists can get along with a tent and aluminum cooking utensils weighing in all only twenty-five pounds.

There the princess will learn to cook. She must be a womanly woman of the good old fashioned sort."

LANDING WAS BRILLIANT

Royal Procession Was Greeted Along the Route With Unclouded Enthusiasm.

Dublin, July 21.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra today reached Irish shores on their visit which promises to do much toward welding together the hearts of Englishmen and Irishmen. The royal yacht was sighted off Kingstown at 8.30 this morning. A heavy rain was falling and threatened to mar the situation at the landing of the king and queen. Crowds, however, began to gather fully two hours before the time set for the arrival of the royal party.

Amid the booming of guns the royal barge left the yacht and landed at Kingstown at 11 o'clock. At the same time the sun broke through the leaden clouds and the landing became a brilliant scene. The long route from Kingstown to the vice-regal lodge outside of Dublin was lined with great crowds. As the procession passed along it was greeted with unclouded enthusiasm.

The king has cancelled the gala performance at the Theatre Royal, Friday, as a mark of respect to the memory of Pope Leo.

BULLET WOUND
PROVED FATALAttelio Bini Accidentally
Shot His Hand

AND TETANUS DEVELOPED

Accident Happened Seventeen Days Ago, on the Night Before the Fourth.

The first fatal result following the celebration of the Fourth of July in Barre occurred last evening when Attelio Bini died from tetanus, resulting from a wound received on Friday evening, July 3, seventeen days having elapsed since the accident. This is the first case of tetanus that has developed in this city, but all through the country scores of deaths have resulted from this dreaded disease.

Like most Fourth of July shootings this was accidental. Bini had a .32-calibre revolver which he was shooting off to celebrate the approach of the national holiday, and had emptied the chambers as he supposed. But there was one cartridge left, and when he opened the revolver with one hand over the muzzle, the weapon was discharged. The large bullet ploughed its way entirely through his left hand, inflicting an ugly wound as the hand was pressed against the muzzle.

Bini went to Dr. F. C. Ligouri immediately, and the wound was dressed. Then as the injured man was a member of the Foresters of America the regular physician of that order, Dr. J. E. McSweeney, was called to attend him.

The injured man improved enough so that he was on the street last week, and to all appearances was on the road to recovery. A few days ago, however, he grew rapidly worse and tetanus or lock-jaw set in. He died last evening at nine o'clock after considerable suffering.

The deceased was 21 years of age, and was unmarried. He had no relatives residing in this vicinity, but an uncle, a resident of Quincy, Mass., was here at the time of the death. The deceased came to this country while he was a small boy. He came to Barre four years ago and had lived here since with the exception of one year spent in Quincy.

The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The petition for divorce sets forth that Mr. Mann is the owner of 11 houses and considerable personal property valued at $40,000, which she claims he proposes to turn into cash.

Mrs. Mann asks temporary alimony and expenses pending hearing at the September term of county court.
